LEARNING ACTIVITY SHEET

Learning Area:	Life and Career Skills	Quarter:	3
Lesson No.:		Date:
Lesson Title/ Topic:	Occupational Wellness
Name:		Grade & Section:

I. Activity 1: Employment Scenarios Recall

II. Objectives: At the end of the activity, you should be able to differentiate forms of employment & evaluate compensation/benefits

III. Materials

- Scenario cards (short written examples of different employment situations) OR teacher-read stories.
- Whiteboard/Manila paper for class listing.

IV. Instructions

1. Priming (2–3 mins):
 - a. The teacher will ask: “Have you ever heard your parents, relatives, or neighbors talk about their work status (contractual, permanent, part-time, etc.)?”

V. Presenting (7–8 mins):

- a. The teacher will present 4–5 scenario cards: “Alpha signed a six-month contract,” “Mav owns a small sari-sari store,” “Olivia works only on weekends while studying.”
- b. In pairs/groups, the students will identify what form of employment is being described.
- c. The students will discuss and explain the list of employment forms on the board with their examples.

VI. Synthesis

- a. The students will ask the given questions:
 - “Which type of employment do you think offers the most stability?”
 - What forms of compensation or benefits might be linked with each?”
- b. Teacher reinforces the link between employment form and career stability/benefits.

I. Activity 2: “Paycheck Breakdown”

II. Objective: At the end of the activity, you should be able to evaluate compensation and benefits packages.

III. Materials

- Mock payslip (with salary, tax, deductions, insurance, allowances, incentives).
- Worksheets for group highlighting.

IV. Instructions:

1. Priming (2 mins):

- The teacher will ask: “Have you heard adults talk about their salary, benefits, or deductions? What do they usually mention?”

2. Presenting (5 mins):

- The teacher will show the learners a sample payslip.

Key concepts:

A salary is a fixed amount of money paid to an employee over a specified time, usually annually.

Benefits refer to the non-wage compensation provided by employers, enhancing your overall employment package.

• Task (7–8 mins):

- In pairs, the learners will highlight or label which items in the payslip are salary and which are benefits.
- The groups will share which benefits they find most helpful or motivating.

V. Synthesis (5 mins):

- The teacher will facilitate the processing questions:
 - “Which is better: high salary only or salary with benefits? Why?”
 - “Why do employees need health insurance?”
- Teacher summarizes: compensation and benefits promote satisfaction, motivation, and security.

I. Activity 3: My Ideal Day

II. Objective: At the end of the activity, you should be able to develop awareness of balance, align goals with employment choices, and demonstrate wellness practices.

III. Materials

- Story cards of two contrasting employees (Andres: high pay, long hours; Olivia: moderate pay, balanced life)
- Blank paper/worksheets titled “My Ideal Workday.”

IV. Instructions

1. Priming (2–3 mins):

- The teacher will lead the priming activity with this statement: “Have you seen someone too busy at work? How does it affect their life?”

2. Presenting (5 mins):

Read or narrate the story of Andres vs. Olivia. Show pictures or a simple timeline of their daily lives.

Task (7–8 mins):

- Learners discuss: “Who would you rather be—Andres or Olivia? Why?”
- Individually, draw or write their ideal workday: how they want to divide time for work, rest, family, hobbies.

V. Synthesis (5 mins):

- Volunteers share their ideal workdays.
- Guide discussion:
 - “What matters more: high pay or balanced time?”
 - “How can choosing the right job and planning ahead help achieve this balance?”
- The teacher will emphasize links to decision-making, planning, and wellness strategies.
