	1. Fair compensation 2. Non-discrimination 3. Rest and time off 4. Protection from exploitation
IV. OBJECTIVES (Setting Clear Objectives and Analyzing the Tasks)	At the end of the lesson, the learners are expected to: 1. Define workplace considerations and explain why they matter in career success. 2. Identify the basic rights of employees (fair compensation, non-discrimination, rest and time off, protection from exploitation). 3. Relate these workplace considerations to personal values and career aspirations.
IV. PROCEDURES		ANNOTATION
A. Activating Prior Knowledge	OPTION 1: Activity title: Future at Work: Imagine and Share Instructions: The teacher will ask the learners to imagine themselves five years from now, already working in a company as an employee. They will reflect on this question: “As an employee, what are the things you would expect from your employer?” Then, learners will be given three minutes to think and write their answers on a ¼ sheet of paper. Afterwards, selected learners will be invited to share their responses in front of the class. OPTION 2:	This exercise draws on the learners' goals and hopes for their future, and therefore is well geared to their age group. It also authorizes engagement and confidence in work expectations.

	Activity Title: Career Clash Debate Instructions: The class will be divided into two teams. Each team will be assigned a stand on a workplace-related debate topic. Each learner will be given 1 minute to express their opinions / arguments. They will present their arguments in a structured debate format (Opening Statement, Arguments, Rebuttal, Closing). Sample Debate Topics: 1. Which is better: working abroad or working in the Philippines? 2. Which is more important for career success: skills or attitude? 3. Which workplace setup is better: work-from-home or office-based? 4. Which matters more in career growth: networking or hard work? 5. Which employer is better: a small local business or a big multinational company?
B. Instituting New Knowledge	1. Presenting Examples OPTION 1: Activity title: Employee Rights Check Instructions: Learners will be given different workplace scenarios. For each scenario, learners must assess whether the basic rights of an employee are being upheld or violated. On a ¼ sheet of paper, learners will write a ✓ (check mark) if the scenario is correct and respects	This activity will enable learners to improve judgement in assessing possible good policies for employees. This may also improve learners' assessment skills.

Presentation: After answering a $\frac{1}{4}$ sheet of paper, learners will be asked to get a partner and discuss their answers.

2. Discussing New Concept

To discuss the basic rights of a Filipino worker, the teacher must be able to discuss and cite the Basic Rights of Employee According to P.D. 442 Labor Code of the Philippines.

BASIC RIGHTS OF EMPLOYEES ACCORDING TO P.D. 442 LABOR CODE OF THE PHILIPPINES

To safeguard Filipino workers' rights, encourage equity in the workplace, and guarantee social justice between employers and employees, the Philippine Labor Code (P.D. 442) was established. It promotes positive working relationships between companies and employees while establishing clear guidelines for working hours, pay, benefits, and job security. Its primary objective is to strike a balance between business expansion and worker welfare in order to maintain industrial harmony and productivity.

1. Normal Hours of Work

- Employees should normally work 8 hours a day. Work beyond 8 hours is considered overtime, which must be paid extra.
- This ensures that workers are not overworked and are paid fairly for extra effort.

2. Overtime Work

- If an employee works more than 8 hours, they should get at least 25% more pay than their regular hourly rate.
- If overtime is on a holiday or rest day, the additional pay is at least 30% more.
- This motivates employers to respect working hours and compensates employees fairly when they need to extend work.

3. Night Shift Differential

- Employees working between 10 PM and 6 AM must get extra pay (not less than 10% of their hourly rate).

	• Night workers deserve added compensation since they work during difficult hours. 4. Rest Day • Workers must have at least one rest day every week. • Employers should respect the employee's religious beliefs when setting rest days. • Rest days allow workers to recover and spend time with their families. 5. Holidays • Employees are entitled to pay on regular holidays even if they don't work. • If they work during a holiday, they get double pay. • This protects workers' right to rest during national holidays and rewards them if they work. 6. Service Incentive Leave • Workers who have served for at least 1 year get 5 days of paid leave per year. • This gives employees a chance to rest or attend to personal matters without losing income.

	7. Women and Minors • The law gives special protection for women and minors in employment. • For example, children below 15 are not allowed to work, except in family businesses under safe conditions. • This ensures that women and young workers are treated fairly and protected from abuse 8. Wages • Wages must be paid in legal tender (Philippine pesos), not in products or promises. • Employers must give pays lips showing details of salary and deductions. • This guarantees fairness and transparency in pay. 9. Payment of Wages • Salaries should be paid at least once every two weeks or twice a month. • Payment should be given directly to the worker at or near the workplace. • This ensures employees receive their earnings regularly and conveniently.

10. Prohibition of Deductions

- Employers cannot make deductions from wages unless allowed by law (e.g., taxes, SSS, Pag-IBIG, PhilHealth contributions).
- This prevents unfair wage cuts and protects employees' income.

11. Benefits for Special Groups

- Special laws give additional rights to women (e.g., maternity leave), minors, and persons with disabilities.
- This recognizes that some groups need more protection in the workplace.

Book Three of the Labor Code makes sure employees have fair working hours, proper pay, rest days, holidays, leave benefits, and protection against abuse. It also ensures that wages are paid correctly and on time.

3. Developing Mastery

“Career Vision Presentation”

Instruction: The learners should form a group with 10 members each. Learners are asked to portray a company and be able to showcase the rights of employees. Each group will be given 5 minutes for brainstorming and 3 minutes to present.

The presentation will be guided using the rubric below:

	Clarity & Communication	Lines are spoken clearly with confidence, proper volume, and expression; the audience easily understands.	Generally clear and understandable; some lapses in confidence or delivery.	Sometimes unclear; the audience has difficulty understanding parts of the role-play.	Very unclear; mumbling, monotone, or poor delivery prevents understanding.
	Option 3: “My Most Suitable Workplace” Which Workplace Fits You? Learners will compare different workplace settings (e.g., work-from-home, abroad, office, school) and explain which one they prefer by identifying and justifying the workplace considerations that matter for career success. Option 4: My Ideal workplace In this activity, learners will be tasked to visualize and illustrate their own ideal workplace. Using a short drawing activity, they will create an image of what their dream work environment looks like. After completing their drawings, learners will be asked to present and explain their work to the class. They should discuss the following points: 1. What makes their chosen workplace “ideal” for them 2. How it differs from other existing workplaces today 3. What specific factors (e.g., environment, people, flexibility, culture, opportunities) contribute to making their workplace a place where they believe they can succeed

C. Demonstrating Knowledge and Skills	1. Finding Practical Application “POLICY EVALUATION” Instruction: Learners will be asked to look for an interview online and assess the different policies made by various companies in the Philippines. Answers should be written on a single sheet of yellow paper. 2. Making Generalization “REFLECTION” Instruction: Learners will be asked to do a reflection of the different policies in the Philippines. Learners are asked to write a policy and tell if it is a good policy or not and learners should explain. a presentation of their answers should be made in front of a class.	This activity helps learners connect what they learn in class to real-world practices. By assessing company policies in the Philippines, they gain hands-on experience in how rules and guidelines affect workplace dynamics. This strengthens their critical thinking and evaluation skills, which are important for future careers. Through reflection, learners go beyond memorizing and start forming their own opinions about policies. This process enhances their ability to generalize concepts, distinguish between good and poor policies, and express their views with reasoning. It develops decision-making

	3. Evaluating Learning “POLICY MAKING” Instruction: Learners will be asked to imagine that they will open a company and asked to write a company policy for their employees. The policy should be in accordance with the Labor Code of the Philippines. Answers should be written on a sheet of yellow paper. To make it more challenging each group will be asked to present their policy in front of the class and the teacher will choose the group who presented the best company policy. 4. Additional Activities Instruction: Look for a company online and download their company’s policy and make suggestions for the improvement of the company’s policy for their futures employees	and analytical skills, which are essential for life and career readiness. This stage offers a chance for real performance. By writing their own company policy in accordance with the Labor Code, learners apply their knowledge creatively and responsibly. This task builds problem-solving, communication, and leadership skills, getting them ready for real-world roles that require policy creation and ethical decision-making.
