III. CONTENT (Sequencing Content)	Responsibilities of Employers 1. Setting job expectations and responsibilities 2. Ensuring workplace productivity 3. Implementing employee discipline 4. Observing occupational health and safety standards • Ergonomics • Disaster and emergency preparedness
IV. OBJECTIVES (Setting Clear Objectives and Analyzing the Tasks)	At the end of the lesson, the learners are expected to: • differentiate the roles of employers in terms of job expectations, productivity, discipline, and occupational health and safety; • simulate workplace scenarios through role-play or group presentations to demonstrate practical application of workplace considerations; and • value the importance of safe, fair, and productive work environments.
IV. PROCEDURES		ANNOTATION
A. Activating Prior Knowledge	1. Activating Prior Knowledge OPTION 1: GUESS THE PICTURE (Think-Pair-Share) Instructions: Look at the pictures of different workplaces, think about what you notice, discuss your ideas with a partner, and then be ready to share with the class.

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education
 BUREAU OF LEARNING DELIVERY

Processing Questions:

- What do you notice about these workplaces?
- How do you think these conditions affect the workers' success?
- Would you want to work in these offices? Why?

The teacher will facilitate the activities based on the given options, using the most appropriate method specific to the context of the school. The teacher will also facilitate the processing of questions to establish meaningful feedback and interaction among learners. The activities provided are well aligned with set goals and content, with a focus on discussing the importance of mindfulness activities and fitness routines.

The components of IDF incorporated in the activities are ideational, responsive, relevant and reflective in nature. Context and concept provide opportunities for the learners to understand the ideas and relate to real life situations and be able to apply them in future challenges.

Also, the activities designed emphasize engagement, allowing the learners the opportunities to share their insights via discussion with their assigned partner/group.

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education
 BUREAU OF LEARNING DELIVERY

OPTION 2: EXPERIENCE MAPPING

Instructions:

1. On the board, write the question: “What makes a workplace safe, fair, and productive?”
2. Learners contribute ideas through meta cards (e.g., rules, supervision, teamwork, safety tools) based on what they’ve observed from their parents’ jobs, part-time work, or community experiences.
3. The teacher organizes responses into categories (expectations, productivity, discipline, health/safety).

2. Establishing the Purpose of the Lesson

OPTION 1: CAREER CONNECTION PROMPT

“Envision you are applying for your dream job. You search the various classified ads and you pick jobs that you will apply to. While searching for jobs, you also checked on safety rules and how they treat their employees.”

Share to the class or small group why the employer needs to provide clear rules, a safe environment, and fair treatment.”

This is responsive because learners would be able to express their own thoughts/views about their career in the future.

With this activity, the teacher allows the learners to become more independent and reflective on their position in providing concrete answers to every task. Hence, engagement and exploration are given importance in the activity in which the learners are actively involved in the task centered learning process and encouraged to delve deeper into the content.

Republic of the Philippines

	OPTION 2: REAL-LIFE STORY REFLECTION Instruction: Based on what you know or have observed in real workplaces, suggest what makes a workplace safe, fair, and productive, and we will group your answers together on the board. Story: Maria was very excited when she got her first job in a small printing shop. At first, she worked hard and enjoyed learning new skills. However, she noticed that her employer did not provide safety equipment when using the heavy printing machines. One day, her co-worker had a minor accident because of the lack of proper protective gloves. This made Maria realize how important workplace safety rules are—not only for the company’s success but also for the workers’ health and future careers. Processing Questions: • What can we learn from Maria’s experience about the importance of safety in the workplace? • How can fairness and equal treatment among workers contribute to a positive work environment? • In what ways can a safe and fair workplace lead to greater productivity and better performance for both employees and the company?	The teacher shall consider the effective means to process the activity with the guided questions provided. The teacher shall also assist the learners to respond with the task.
B. Instituting New Knowledge	1. Presenting Examples OPTION 1: CASE STUDY SNAPSHOTS	In this activity, it highlights the 4Cs instructional design, the context, and connect. The learners can perceive and understand the concept and relate the new learning to the existing knowledge.

	Instruction: Learners read the scenarios below and answer the processing questions. Scenario 1: Anna started working in a clothing shop, but her manager did not explain her specific duties. Sometimes she was asked to clean, other times to arrange stocks, and later to handle customers. She felt confused and made mistakes. Processing Questions: • What role of the employer was missing in this scenario? • How could clear job expectations affect Anna's success at work? Scenario 2: A printing business owner decided to adopt workflow automation software. Instead of manually recording each client order, employees used the system to track deadlines and payments. Work became faster, errors decreased, and customers were more satisfied. Processing Questions: • How did technology improve the productivity of the workplace? • If you were an employee in this business, how would this system make your job easier? Scenario 3: Mark, an employee in a delivery company, was always late. Instead of firing him immediately, his supervisor first talked to	The task which focuses on analyzing the different scenarios followed by the processing questions. The components of IDF incorporated in the activities are responsive, relevant, and reflective. This activity is responsive as it addresses real workplace situations that senior high school learners may encounter. It is relevant because it connects classroom learning to actual job experiences, highlighting the importance of clear communication and defined roles. It is also reflective, encouraging learners to think critically about how job expectations influence work performance and personal growth. In this activity, it prioritizes learner-centered learning and active engagement methods such as Experiential Learning and Inquiry-Based Learning are applied to activate their prior knowledge to the new knowledge. The teacher will facilitate the questioning process to encourage the learner's deeper thinking and reflection. In this part, the learners will perform the mindfulness practice. Processing Questions:

- What did the supervisor do to ensure discipline was fair?
- How can fair discipline benefit both the company and the worker?

OPTION 2: DATA TO STORY

Instruction: Analyze the table below and answer the questions.

	• What changes do you think the café owner made that helped increase the number of customers and reduce employee absences? • How does this example show that improving workplace practices can lead to better success for both the business and its employees? 2. Discussing New Concept OPTION 1: INTERACTIVE LECTURE Instruction: Teacher guides learners through definitions of Job Expectations, Productivity, Discipline, and Occupational Health and Safety Standards. Processing Question: • Why is it important for employers to clearly set job expectations for their employees? • How can observing occupational health and safety rules affect workers' careers and lives? OPTION 2: CONCEPT MAPPING Instruction: Create a simple concept map showing the four employer responsibilities and examples of how each contributes to career success. Present the map to the class. (Example below:)	The teacher will conduct the activities based on the available options, selecting the most suitable approach according to the specific context of the school. Additionally, the teacher will guide the processing of reflection questions to encourage meaningful interaction and feedback among the learners. These activities are intentionally aligned with the set objectives and content, emphasizing the responsibilities of employers. The activities incorporate components of the IDF (Ideational and Reflective) framework, promoting both idea generation and personal reflection. Through relevant contexts and concepts, learners are given opportunities to grasp key ideas, connect them to real-life situations, and apply these insights to future experiences and challenges.

Processing Questions:

- Which employer responsibility do you think is the most important for employee success? Why?
- How are these four responsibilities connected to each other in creating a safe and productive workplace?

DISCUSSION:

Group Activity: Discuss and present the following concepts under Employer's Responsibilities and answer the processing questions.

Group 1: Setting Job Expectations and Responsibilities

1. Define Major Job Duties Clearly
 - Employers must establish a detailed job description that clearly delineates essential duties—those without which the job fails—versus secondary or peripheral tasks.
 - A good roles & responsibilities template should include: job title, day-to-day responsibilities,

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education

required qualifications, expected outcomes, and reporting lines.

2. Communicate Expectations Effectively

- Expectations should be communicated clearly, specifically, and consistently, using multiple channels: orientation, employee handbook, performance standards, and regular review.
- Employers ought to provide realistic job previews so that employees understand not only the positives, but also challenges of the role—supporting mutual trust and reducing turnover.

3. Provide Support, Resources and Feedback

- To meet expectations, employers must supply adequate training, tools, materials, and access to necessary resources.
- Employers should offer regular feedback and recognition for performance achievements.

4. Build Role Clarity and Accountability

- Clarified roles reduce confusion, improve collaboration, and lower conflict in the workplace. Ambiguity or overlap leads to role conflict and lowered productivity
- Clear assignment of responsibilities, coupled with assigned leaders or front-line persons responsible for overseeing performance, promotes accountability.

Why Good Expectation-Setting Matters

- Improves Productivity
- Supports Professional Growth
- Reduces Turnover
- Creates Fairness

Group 2: Ensuring Workplace Productivity

- Productivity measures the efficiency of converting inputs into outputs. Inputs are any resources used, while output refers to the number of goods/services produced or economic performance over a given period.
- To calculate productivity over a specific time period, divide the average output by the total inputs that your business used to produce those outputs. Inputs may include the costs associated with production, such as materials or total employee labor hours. Another simple way to calculate productivity is by measuring profit, as an increase in profitability can often mean an increase in productivity.
- Key performance indicators leaders can use to track productivity include:
 - ✓ Customer satisfaction score
 - ✓ Employee turnover rate
 - ✓ Labor utilization rate
- How to improve workplace productivity
 - ✓ Use technology to your advantage
 - ✓ Communicate effectively

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education
 BUREAU OF LEARNING DELIVERY

	✓ Encourage employee wellness ✓ Provide opportunities for learning and development ✓ Offer flexibility Group 3: Implementing Employee Discipline ■ Disciplinary action is a management prerogative. Imposing penalties should be done in good faith. The penalty must be commensurate with the offense. ■ Under the doctrine of management prerogative, every employer has the inherent right to regulate, according to his own discretion and judgment, all aspects of employment, including hiring, work assignments, working methods, the time, place, and manner of work, work supervision, transfer of employees, lay-off of workers, and discipline, dismissal, and recall of employees. ■ In general, management has the prerogative to discipline its employees and to impose appropriate penalties on erring workers pursuant to company rules and regulations. ■ Disciplinary action against an erring employee is a management prerogative which, generally, is not subject to judicial interference. However, this policy can be justified only if legitimate business reasons dictate the disciplinary action and is not oppressive. ■ Effects of non-compliance. Employees who violate such rules and regulations are liable for the penalties and sanctions so provided, e.g., the Company's Manual of Discipline (as in this case) and the Labor Code. ■ Conduct of Investigation a. Management prerogative on how to conduct investigation b. Preparatory investigation not yet covered by the twin-notice rule c. Due process requirement ■ Imposing penalties a. Good faith in imposing penalties b. Principle: Penalty must be commensurate with the offense c. Consider the length of service, number of infractions d. Dismissal as last resort e. Employer's prerogative whether to be strict or not Group 4: Observing Occupational Health and Safety ● Minimum OSH Programs such as, but not limited to the following shall be established: a) Occupational Accident and Illness Prevention Program b) Medical Services Assistance and Rehabilitation Program c) Occupational Accident and Illness Surveillance Program d) Information and Education Campaign Program ● Promotion and practice of Health and Wellness in the workplace as provided in CSC Memorandum Circular No.

Processing Question:

- Do you think employees perform better when their job roles are clearly explained? Why or why not?
- Does integrating technology into workplace processes have the potential to enhance overall productivity? Give one example.
- Is it generally advisable to terminate an employee's contract outright for their initial workplace offenses or lapses? Why?
- Do you agree that a safe and healthy workplace contributes to career success? Explain briefly.

3. Developing Mastery

OPTION 1: JOB MATCH CHALLENGE

Instruction: Match each job description with at least two employer responsibilities that are most essential to setting clear job expectations for that role. Write a short explanation (2–3 sentences) on why those responsibilities are important for that specific job. Share your answers with a partner or small group.

Job Descriptions:

1. Teacher – Facilitates learning, prepares lessons, assesses learners, and maintains classroom discipline.
2. Cashier – Handles money transactions, operates the cash register, and assists customers at checkout.

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education
 BUREAU OF LEARNING DELIVERY

3. Nurse – Provides patient care, administers medicines, monitors health conditions, and assists doctors.
4. Construction Worker – Performs manual labor on building projects, follows safety protocols, and uses equipment/tools.
5. IT Specialist – Manages computer systems, troubleshoots technical issues, ensures cybersecurity, and supports staff.

Employer Responsibilities:

- a. Define Major Job Duties Clearly – Provide a detailed job description outlining essential and secondary tasks.
- b. Communicate Expectations Effectively – Share goals, performance standards, and rules consistently (orientation, handbook, meetings).
- c. Provide Support, Resources, and Feedback – Give training, tools, and materials needed; offer regular feedback and recognition.
- d. Build Role Clarity and Accountability – Ensure roles don't overlap, assign reporting lines, and hold employees accountable for tasks.
- e. Implement Fair Discipline – Apply clear, fair, and proportional penalties when rules are violated.
- f. Observe Occupational Health & Safety (OHS) – Provide safe workplace, safety equipment, health checks, and awareness training.

	• Define Major Job Duties Clearly • Observe Occupational Health & Safety (OHS) Explanation: Construction work is dangerous and involves different tasks like carrying materials, operating equipment, and following building plans. Employers must give clear job duties and prioritize safety measures to prevent accidents. Processing Questions: • Why is it important for employers to clearly define tasks and responsibilities for different job roles? • How can unclear or missing expectations affect both the employee and the company? • What ethical issues or concerns might arise when employers or employees fail to follow fair and responsible workplace practices? OPTION 2: WORKPLACE DISCIPLINE ROLE-PLAY: FAIR OR UNFAIR? Instruction: Divide the class into small groups. Provide each group with a short workplace scenario. Each group will create a short role-play (3–5 minutes) showing how the employer handles the situation. After presenting, the class will reflect on which version demonstrates good employer responsibility and why. Scenario 1: The Habitual Latecomer	In this part, the learners will perform the life situations and will collaborate with the group to accomplish the assigned task. Experiential and collaborative learnings are emphasized in the routine exploration activity. Through this activity, the teacher provides opportunities for learners to develop independence and reflect on their perspectives while offering thoughtful responses to each task. 	An employee, John, frequently arrives 20–30 minutes late to work. The employer, frustrated, immediately deducts half of John’s salary for the month without giving prior warnings or hearing his side. Unfair Discipline: Salary deduction without due process, excessive penalty, no verbal/written warning. Fair Discipline: Employer talks to John privately, issues a verbal then written warning, reminds him of company policy, and offers flexible support Scenario 2 – Ignoring Safety Rules Maria, a factory worker, refuses to wear her safety helmet despite reminders. The employer suddenly fires her on the spot. Unfair Discipline: Dismissal without investigation or prior notice, no chance for explanation. Fair Discipline: Employer investigates, explains the importance of safety, gives a written warning, and requires Maria to attend a safety orientation. Dismissal is only considered if repeated violations occur. Scenario 3 – Mistake in Work Output Kevin, a new cashier, accidentally enters the wrong amount in the cash register, causing a small loss for the company. His employer scolds him loudly in front of co-workers and customers. Unfair Discipline: Public humiliation, lack of guidance, punishment not proportional to the mistake.	where learners actively participate in task-centered learning experiences and are encouraged to examine the content more deeply. C. Demonstrating Knowledge and Skills	1. Finding Practical Application OPTION 1: THE MISSING JOB DESCRIPTION Instruction: Learners will be given a short case study. In pairs or small groups, learners will analyze the situation. Groups will present their findings and propose 2 solutions the employer should implement to fix the problem.					In this activity, the learners are prepared to explore and apply the learning concepts through simulation activities. The teacher will employ formative assessment to evaluate the results of the learning task for feedback purposes.

	Scenario 1: The Confused New Hire Anna was recently hired as an office assistant. On her first day, she was told to answer phone calls. The next day, she was asked to prepare financial reports even though she has no accounting background. Later in the week, her supervisor instructed her to deliver packages outside the office. Anna feels confused, overworked, and unsure what her real job is supposed to be. Key Neglected Responsibilities: Defining major job duties clearly; providing realistic job preview. Scenario 2: The Silent Boss Mark works as a sales staff in a retail store. His manager only told him, “Make sure to sell a lot.” No daily sales targets, performance standards, or feedback were provided. Mark tries his best but doesn’t know if he is meeting expectations. At the end of the month, he was told he failed to meet his quota—but he was never told what the quota was. Key Neglected Responsibilities: Communicating expectations effectively; providing regular feedback. Scenario 3: Tools Not Provided Jessa was hired as a graphic designer for a small company. She was told to create high-quality digital ads but was given an old, slow computer with outdated software. When she requested proper tools, her employer said, “Just make do with what you have.” Her output suffered, and the employer blamed her for “low productivity.” Key Neglected Responsibilities: Providing support, resources, and feedback.

Processing Questions:

- Why is it important for employers to define major job duties clearly from the start?
- How does the lack of role clarity and communication affect both the employer and the employee?

OPTION 2: CAREER CONNECTION REFLECTION

Instruction: Write a one-page reflection on how these employer responsibilities (expectations, productivity, discipline, and safety) could affect your future career choice and success. Give at least one concrete example.

Processing Questions:

- Which of the four employer responsibilities do you think will matter most in your chosen career path?

OPTION 2: WORKPLACE WISDOM IN WORDS

Instruction: Create a slogan that emphasizes the importance of employer responsibilities—such as setting job expectations, ensuring productivity, implementing discipline, and observing occupational health and safety—in promoting career success. Be creative and make sure your work clearly connects these ideas.

Rubrics:

CRITERIA	Excellent (3 pts)	Satisfactory (2 pts)	Needs Improvement (1 pt.)
Relevance	Slogan clearly reflects employer responsibilities (job expectations, productivity, discipline, safety) and connects to career success.	Slogan somewhat reflects employer responsibilities but connection to career success is vague.	Slogan shows little to no connection to employer responsibilities or career success.
Clarity & Impact	Message is clear, concise, and powerful; easy to understand.	Message is understandable but may lack impact or conciseness.	Message is unclear, confusing, or hard to understand.
Creativity & Authenticity	Slogan is highly creative, original, and engaging.	Slogan shows some creativity but may be common or predictable.	Slogan lacks creativity or originality.

VI. REFLECTION (Feedback and Continuous Improvement)	Answer the following questions: 1. Which employer responsibility (job expectations, productivity, discipline, or safety) do you think has the greatest impact on career success? Why? 2. How would you feel working in a company that clearly sets expectations and provides feedback compared to one that does not? 3. In what ways do safe and fair workplaces motivate employees to grow and succeed? 4. If you were an employer in the future, how would you ensure that your employees are productive and satisfied? 5. What is your biggest takeaway from this lesson about the connection between workplace considerations and your own career journey?
