IV. PROCEDURES	ANNOTATION
A. Activating Prior Knowledge 1. Activating Prior Knowledge Option 1: Activity: "Proper or Not?" – Workplace Behavior Photo Challenge 1. Show the Pictures (15-20 mins) One at a time, show learners a photo depicting a workplace scenario. Examples:       2. Learner Response (as you go) After showing each photo: Ask learners to raise their hands or use a response card: "Proper" or "Not Proper"	(Activating Prior Knowledge – 15 to 20 minutes) The teacher will present pictures of the given examples one at a time; - A person talking on the phone loudly in a shared office - Two coworkers shaking hands - Someone wearing slippers and shorts in a corporate office - A person helping a colleague with his/her task - Eating at the work desk during a meeting - Coming late in work The teacher will present the mechanics of the activity

	○ Alternatively, have them write their answers on a worksheet ○ Optionally, call on a few learners to explain why they think it is proper or not 3. Group Discussion (10-15 mins) Discuss the correct answer after each photo. Ask: ○ Why is this behavior proper or improper? ○ What would be a better way to handle this situation? ○ What steps do you take to ensure clear and respectful communication with your team? ○ How to maintain teamwork and collaboration with your colleague?	Wrap-Up (5 mins) Summarize key takeaways about professionalism, behavior, and respect in the workplace.
	Option 2 ACTIVITY: “Spot the Workplace” Objective: To assess learners' current understanding of workplace behavior and etiquette by identifying correct and incorrect actions in common workplace scenarios. Materials Needed: Printed or projected illustrated workplace scenarios (or simple written role-play cards) Chart paper or whiteboard Markers or sticky notes Instructions: Scenario Presentation (5 mins): Present 2–3 short scenarios (either illustrated or written) showing various workplace behaviors.	Other Options: • Divide learners into groups and let them create their own skits or draw pictures showing workplace behavior. • Use real-life news stories or viral videos (school-appropriate) as case studies. This activity builds on learners’ real-world observations or media exposure and helps them differentiate proper and improper etiquette before diving into formal definitions and examples.

	Each scenario should include a mix of proper and improper etiquette. Example Scenario 1 (Written): “Anna comes to work 15 minutes late without informing her supervisor. She walks into the office chewing gum and wearing headphones. When her colleague greets her, she shrugs and keeps scrolling through her phone.” Group Task (5 mins): Divide learners into small groups. Ask them to: identify behaviors that violate workplace etiquette; point out any positive actions; and suggest what the person should have done differently. Sharing & Discussion (5 mins): Groups share their findings with the class. The teacher writes keywords on the board (e.g., "punctuality," "appearance," "communication," "respect"). 2. Establishing the Purpose of the Lesson Processing and Guide questions: 1. Why is it important to know proper workplace etiquette? 2. What happens to the office if employees come late? 3. What is the result of the work if everyone is always absent?	The teacher facilitates a short discussion by asking: “Have you seen similar behaviors in real life or in the media?” “Why do you think these behaviors are considered inappropriate?” “How do small actions affect workplace relationships?”

TARDINESS PUNCTUALITY MORALE GROOMING ABSENTEEISM CONSEQUENCE HABIT WORKPLACE The Importance of Punctuality and Attendance Punctuality and attendance are not just school requirements—they are essential components of professional behavior in the workplace. As Senior High School learners prepare to transition from school to employment or higher education, it is vital to understand how being on time and consistently present reflects one's attitude, commitment, and reliability. Workplace etiquette refers to the code of conduct that governs social behavior in professional environments. Among the most valued aspects of this etiquette are punctuality and regular attendance. Employers across industries emphasize these traits because they affect productivity, teamwork, and overall organizational success.	Annotation: The teacher will give the meaning of each word presented. TARDINESS - The act of being late or not arriving on time to work, school, or other scheduled events. PUNCTUALITY - The habit of being on time or arriving at the correct or agreed-upon time. MORALE - The overall attitude, confidence, and satisfaction of a person or group, especially in a workplace or team setting.

	1. What is Workplace Etiquette? Workplace etiquette refers to the expected behavior and manners of employees within a professional setting. It includes communication style, dress code, respect for others, and time management—especially punctuality and attendance. 2. Why is Punctuality Important in the Workplace? Builds Trust and Reliability: Arriving on time signals that you are dependable. Shows Respect for Others' Time: Being punctual respects your coworkers' and the employer's time. Affects Team Workflow: Delays caused by tardiness can disrupt meetings, production, or customer service. Enhances Professional Image: Time-conscious employees are seen as more professional and prepared. 3. Why is Regular Attendance Crucial? Ensures Productivity: Regular attendance ensures that tasks are completed on time and goals are met. Supports Team Collaboration: Absences can lead to gaps in communication and workflow. Reflects Commitment: Showing up daily demonstrates a strong work ethic. Avoids Disciplinary Action: Many companies have strict policies; repeated absences can lead to warnings or termination. 4. Consequences of Poor Punctuality and Attendance • Verbal or written warnings • Loss of trust or poor performance reviews • Missed promotions or job opportunities	GROOMING - The practice of maintaining a neat, clean, and professional appearance, including hygiene, dress, and personal care. ABSENTEEISM - Frequent or habitual absence from work or school without a valid reason. CONSEQUENCE - The result or effect of an action or behavior—can be positive (a reward) or negative (a punishment). HABIT - A regular practice or behavior that is done automatically, often without thinking. WORKPLACE - The physical or virtual location where a person performs their job or work duties. The teacher will emphasize the importance of Punctuality and Attendance. Punctuality and attendance are fundamental to workplace success. These habits, when developed early, contribute to a positive work ethic and help build a reputation as a reliable and respectful employee. For SHS learners, these values are not just academic expectations—they

	• Termination or non-renewal of contracts • Negative impact on team dynamics 5. Real-World Application for SHS Learners In programs like Work Immersion, punctuality and attendance are often assessed and reported to partner companies. Learners who demonstrate professionalism may receive better evaluations, recommendations, or even job offers.	are essential life skills that employers greatly value.
	The Significance of Professional Appearance and Personal Grooming in the Workplace. In today's competitive work environment, professional appearance and personal grooming are essential elements of workplace etiquette. They not only reflect an individual's professionalism but also influence first impressions, workplace relationships, and career advancement. As SHS learners prepare for immersion and future employment, understanding the significance of presenting themselves appropriately is crucial. Employers often consider appearance and grooming as indicators of attitude, reliability, and respect for the workplace. 1. What is Professional Appearance? Professional appearance refers to the way an individual dresses and presents themselves in a work environment. It includes clothing, footwear, accessories, and overall cleanliness. • Follows company dress code or industry standard (e.g., business formal, business casual, uniforms) • Neat, clean, and well-fitting clothes

	• Minimal and appropriate accessories or makeup 2. What is Personal Grooming? Personal grooming involves practices that maintain cleanliness and good hygiene, which are essential in any professional setting. Includes: • Regular bathing • Hair grooming and styling • Clean nails and hands • Oral hygiene • Use of deodorant/perfume (in moderation) 3. Why Appearance and Grooming Matter in the Workplace? Creates a Positive First Impression: You often only get one chance to make a good first impression—your appearance speaks before you do. Builds Confidence: Proper grooming can boost self-esteem and confidence, helping one perform better. Demonstrates Respect and Professionalism: Being well-groomed shows that you take your role seriously and respect your workplace. Influences Career Advancement: Employers often associate neat appearance with reliability and leadership potential. Enhances Workplace Relationships: A clean and professional appearance can lead to better communication and collaboration. 4. Industry Examples Corporate/Office Jobs: Business formal or smart casual attire, clean and ironed clothes, neutral makeup Hospitality & Tourism: Uniforms, polished appearance, clean shoes, and friendly demeanor

 Healthcare: Scrubs or uniforms, short nails, no strong scents, high hygiene standards

5. Professionalism Beyond Appearance

While grooming is important, it must be paired with positive behaviors—such as punctuality, respect, and responsibility—to truly reflect professionalism.

The Value of Respect in the Workplace

Respect is the act of valuing other people by treating them with kindness, fairness, and consideration. It means acknowledging their rights, opinions, and contributions, regardless of differences in background, position, or beliefs.

This are some Identify behaviors that shows respect and disrespect at work:

Behaviors that Show Respect at Work

- ☐ Listening attentively when others speak.
- ☐ Using polite words (please, thank you, excuse me).
- ☐ Acknowledging and appreciating others' efforts.
- ☐ Being punctual in meetings and tasks.
- ☐ Respecting personal space and property.
- ☐ Accepting differences in culture, opinions, or background.
- ☐ Giving constructive feedback instead of criticism.
- ☐ Helping colleagues when needed.

Behaviors that Show Disrespect at Work

Republic of the Philippines
Department of Education
BUREAU OF LEARNING DELIVERY

- ☐ Interrupting or talking over others.
- ☐ Using rude or offensive language.
- ☐ Ignoring or dismissing colleagues' ideas.
- ☐ Gossiping or spreading rumors.
- ☐ Being habitually late or unprepared.
- ☐ Taking credit for someone else's work.
- ☐ Showing favoritism or discrimination.
- ☐ Refusing to cooperate with teammates.

The Value of Good Digital Citizenship

Good digital citizenship and netiquette are essential in fostering professionalism in the workplace because they reflect an individual's respect, responsibility, and ethical behavior in online interactions. Practicing digital citizenship means using technology appropriately and responsibly by respecting privacy, protecting data, and communicating with integrity. Employees who demonstrate these traits create a trustworthy digital environment, maintain the organization's reputation, and prevent issues such as data breaches, misinformation, or online conflicts. In essence, being a good digital citizen ensures that technology use supports productivity and ethical conduct.

Moreover, proper netiquette, including good social media behavior, enhances professionalism by promoting clarity, respect, and positive relationships among colleagues. Employees should avoid "flaming" or posting hostile messages, refrain from using all capital letters (which can appear as shouting), and ensure that their posts and comments reflect respect and professionalism. Using courteous language, maintaining a professional tone, and thinking before posting are key practices. Whether through emails, video meetings, or social media
