LESSON EXEMPLAR

Learning Area	EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION	Grade Level	11
Semester	2 nd	Quarter	3 rd

I. OBJECTIVES
A. Content Standard	The learners demonstrate effective communication in academic and training contexts through spoken, written, and multimodal forms ; they understand that interaction patterns in academic and training contexts are formal, structured, and discipline-specific, and that intellectual integrity, honest and respectful critique, and inclusive language foster meaningful academic and training engagement.
B. Performance Standard	The learners produce spoken, written, and multimodal academic and technical texts for specific purposes and audiences , such as, but not limited to, articles, research reports, public speaking presentations, reviews, and podcasts; prepare note cards and reference lists in support of these texts; convert these texts into presentation formats aided by non-verbal signals and multimedia tools or resources; and give and use feedback on the content, structure and language of communication to improve performance.
C. Communicative Event/s	Writing reflective essays, position papers, or critiques
D. Learning Competencies	• Use critical listening, reading, and viewing strategies in comprehending academic and technical texts. • Participate constructively in academic or technical lectures, presentations, or discussions by asking questions, providing feedback, and responding appropriately. • Employ ethical considerations in producing extended academic and technical texts. • Review one's readiness to participate in academic and technical communication, identifying strengths and areas for growth.

III. CONTENT

Expressing Ideas through Reflective Essays, Position Papers, and Critiques

IV. OBJECTIVES

At the end of the lesson, the learners are expected to:

1. differentiate among reflective essays, position papers, and critique papers based on purpose, tone, and structure.
2. apply critical listening, reading, and viewing strategies in analyzing academic and technical texts.
3. produce a short reflective essay, position paper, or critique that observes ethical considerations.
4. reflect on their strengths and areas for improvement in academic and technical communication.

IV. PROCEDURES	ANNOTATIONS
A. Activating Prior Knowledge	A.1. Activating Prior Knowledge Activity: Think-Pair-Share Directions: 1. Ask students, “Have you ever written a reflection, a reaction, or a critique about something you read, watched, or listened to? How did you do it?” Teacher Notes: Let students share examples from personal experiences (e.g., reflecting on a movie, critiquing a TikTok video, or reacting to a speech). A.2. Establishing the Purpose of the Lesson Processing Questions: 1. What are reflections, position papers, and critiques typically written for? 2. What benefits do these forms of writing offer in academic studies and future professions? 3. What challenges might you encounter when writing these types of texts? 4. How does applying ethical standards influence the quality and credibility of your work? Teacher Note: Today’s lesson will help learners engage with academic and technical texts more critically. Emphasize that they will not only read and listen, but also write reflections, critiques, or position papers that demonstrate deeper understanding. Highlight that these skills are essential for academic success and effective professional communication.

Facilitate the Think-Pair-Share by letting students think individually, share with a partner, and then present ideas to the class. Encourage them to use personal examples from movies, TikTok, or speeches, and connect these experiences to academic writing.

This strategy fosters inclusivity by valuing diverse experiences, activating prior knowledge, encouraging collaboration, and helping students bridge real-life contexts with academic writing while sparking creativity and idea development.

Facilitate the discussion by asking guiding questions, allowing students to share their thoughts, and writing key insights on the board. Link their responses to the objectives of writing reflections, critiques, and position papers.

This approach promotes inclusive participation, engages learners through meaningful questioning, stimulates critical and creative thinking, and connects personal experiences with academic and professional writing.

This strategy also aligns with a learner-centered pedagogical approach, as students construct meaning through both independent reasoning and peer interaction. It reflects Sociocultural Theory, with learners building on one another’s perspectives. In the SHS-IDF, it supports Learners’ Needs, Interests, and Strengths and promotes Authentic and Relevant Learning by connecting personal experiences to academic and professional writing, while the teacher’s synthesis ensures Focused and Meaningful Assessment.

B. Instituting New Knowledge

B.1. Presenting Examples

Activity #1: Spot the Difference

Directions:

1. Divide the class into small groups and provide each group with three full essays: one reflective essay, one position paper, and one critique.
 - ✓ Reflection Essay - <https://assets.ltkcontent.com/files/Reflective-Essay-Book.pdf>
 - ✓ Position Paper - <https://pap.ph/position-paper/12>
 - ✓ Critique - <https://www.scribd.com/document/427934304/Critique-Paper>
2. Instruct each student in the group to read all three essays carefully. Using the guide provided, each student should complete a chart (Appendix 1) for each essay.
3. Ask each group to select one essay and prepare one key observation to share with the whole class. The observation should move beyond simple summary and highlight how effectively the essay fulfills its purpose, what can be improved, or what noteworthy strengths or weaknesses stand out.

B.2. Discussing New Concept

TYPE OF TEXT	PURPOSE	STRUCTURE	TONE/STYLE	ETHICAL CONSIDERATION
Reflection Essay	To share learning, insights, or personal experiences	Introduction (experienced/context)>Body (an analysis/reflection)>Conclusion (insight/lesson learned)	Personal, introspective, often first-person	Honesty in sharing experiences; respectful acknowledgement of others' perspectives
Position Paper	To present a stand or argument on an issue	Introduction (issue + stance)>Arguments with evidence>Counterarguments(optional)>Conclusion (restate position)	Formal, persuasive, objective	Fair representation of facts; avoidance of bias or misinformation;

Facilitate group reading of excerpts, letting students identify the text type, tone, purpose, and ethical considerations. Have them write their answers on a chart and share one key observation per group, followed by a class processing.

This strategy engages learners in analyzing text features, encourages collaborative discussion, includes diverse perspectives, and strengthens their ability to connect tone, purpose, and ethics to academic writing.

This approach aligns with a learner-centered and collaborative pedagogy, allowing students to co-construct understanding through group analysis and shared insights. It reflects Sociocultural Theory as learners support and build on one another's interpretations of texts. In the SHS-IDF, this activity supports Authentic and Relevant Learning by linking real-world communication practices to academic expectations, and it addresses Learners' Needs, Interests, and Strengths through cooperative engagement. The teacher's synthesis during class processing ensures Focused and Meaningful Assessment, guiding students toward the intended outcomes of responsible and ethical academic writing.

The Discussing New Concepts section is designed as a continuation of the activity in Presenting Examples. After analyzing sample texts through the comparison chart, learners are expected to consolidate their observations through guided discussion, ensuring a smooth transition from concrete examples to conceptual understanding.

This discussion-based strategy reflects a learner-centered pedagogical approach, where students actively construct meaning from their own analysis and peer insights rather than passively receiving information. It also draws on Sociocultural Theory, as knowledge is co-built through interaction and teacher scaffolding. In alignment with the SHS-IDF, the guided synthesis promotes Authentic and Relevant Learning, helping inclusivity in language

Critique	To evaluate a work, concept, or performance critically	Introduction(topic/work)>Body(strengths, weaknesses, analysis)>Conclusion(overall assessment)	Analytical, evaluative, balanced	Respectful critique; accuracy in interpretation; avoiding personal bias

Teacher Note: Teachers should emphasize that a text's purpose directly dictates its structure, tone, and ethical approach. The Reflection Essay is personal and first-person, focusing on insight and requiring honesty. The Position Paper is formal and objective, presenting arguments with evidence, and demanding fair representation of facts and avoidance of bias. The Critique must be analytical and balanced, evaluating strengths and weaknesses while maintaining respectful critique and avoiding personal bias. This alignment between purpose and required components is crucial for students' academic writing integrity.

B.3. Developing Mastery

Activity #2: Watch, Think, Write!

Directions:

1. The class will be divided into groups, and each group will be assigned one writing style: Reflective Essay, Position Paper, and Critique
2. Use the guide sheet with prompts in completing the task:

GUIDE SHEET: REFLECTIVE ESSAY/POSITION PAPER/CRITIQUE
GROUP NO.	ASSIGNED WRITING STYLE:
1. Main Idea or Message	-What is the video mainly about? Summarize in 2-3 sentences.
2. Personal Agreement or Disagreement (if applicable)	-Do you agree or disagree with the ideas presented? Why or why not? -What evidence supports your stand?
3. Key Evidence or Highlights	-What important examples, statistics, or points did the speaker/presenter show?

students connect real text samples to academic writing concepts. It also supports Focused and Meaningful Assessment, with the teacher checking understanding and refining misconceptions as students articulate deeper insights.

Assign each group a specific text type, let them watch a short video, take notes using a guide sheet, and create a short version of the assigned text. Facilitate their presentations and provide feedback afterward.

This strategy offers concrete experiences, encourages creative and collaborative writing, connects multimedia inputs to text production, and integrates ethical considerations into academic communication. It also aligns with a learner-centered pedagogical approach, as students actively construct knowledge through performance and peer interaction rather than passive learning. The integration of video resources and writing tasks supports Authentic and Relevant Learning in the SHS-IDF, showing how academic text types function in real communication settings. Collaboration within groups reinforces Learners' Needs, Interests, and Strengths, while the presentations and feedback enable Focused and Meaningful Assessment through ongoing guidance and refinement of skills.

			-Which part of the video stood out to you the most?
		4.Ethical Considerations	-Did the video or speaker use credible information? -Was the tone respectful, fair, and objective? -If you were to write about this, what should you cite or acknowledge?
		5.Insights or Lessons Learned	-What did you personally learn from the video? -How can you apply these insights to your academic, personal, or professional life?
		3. Show students one short academic video from the options. ✓ Reflective Essay - https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QoI67VeE3ds ✓ Position Paper - https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vSgv5SzSd0k ✓ Critique - https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6A7ToBcOh8Y&t=1603s 4. Output Task: Guide learners to use their notes to create a mini version of their assigned text type—whether a reflective essay, position paper, or critique. Remind them to keep it concise, about 1–2 paragraphs, and to apply the appropriate tone, structure, and ethical standards. 5. Refer the learners to the scoring rubric in Appendix 2 for guidance.
C. Demonstrating Knowledge and Skills	C.1. Finding Practical Application Activity #3: Reflect, Argue, Critique Theme: How social media influences students' study habits Directions: Instruct learners to write a short piece that connects the theme not only to their academic life but also to real-life applications and to one of the four SHS career exits. Remind them to keep their work concise, focused, and aligned with proper tone, structure, and ethical standards. See Appendix 3 for the scoring rubric. - Higher Education - Employment - Entrepreneurship - Middle-Level Skills Development				This strategy applies Authentic and Performance-Based Learning because students create real-world text types with practical purposes. It also embodies Differentiated Instruction and Learner-Centered Pedagogy , giving learners autonomy to select the type of writing that best matches their strengths and perspectives. By requiring justification, evidence, and critical insight, the

	Choose one writing lens from the following options: Option A – Reflective Essay (Personal Lens) • Instruct learners to write a one-paragraph reflection on how social media affects their study habits. • Guide them to connect their insights to their chosen SHS pathway: ✓ Higher Education: How digital discipline and research habits prepare them for college. ✓ Employment: How time management and professional online conduct prepare them for workplace tasks. ✓ Entrepreneurship: How social media can inspire innovation or pose distractions in business planning. ✓ Middle-Level Skills Development: How online tutorials, technical groups, or forums can support hands-on learning and certifications. Option B – Position Paper (Argumentative Lens) • Instruct learners to write a one-paragraph position paper taking a stand: either “Social media positively influences study habits” or “Social media negatively influences study habits.” • Require them to provide at least one research-based or real-life example to support their stance. • Guide learners to relate their position to one SHS exit: ✓ Higher Education: Academic research and use of digital libraries. ✓ Employment: Productivity and workplace training. ✓ Entrepreneurship: Using social media as a learning tool for business strategies. ✓ Middle-Level Skills Development: Accessing technical tutorials or online certifications. Option C – Critique (Analytical Lens) • Instruct learners to write a one-paragraph critique on how students generally use social media for studying. • Ask them to identify both strengths and weaknesses, such as collaboration versus distractions or easy access to information versus misinformation. • Guide them to end the critique with a recommendation linked to one SHS exit:	task builds Higher-Order Thinking Skills essential for academic and professional success. In the SHS Instructional Delivery Framework (SHS-IDF), the activity supports Authentic and Relevant Learning by linking personal digital behavior to future opportunities. It addresses Learners’ Needs, Interests, and Strengths through choice and engagement in a familiar issue—social media. The teacher’s prompts on tone, ethics, and evidence ensure Focused and Meaningful Assessment, guiding students toward responsible communication aligned with real-world expectations.

- ✓ Higher Education: Encourage proper citation and careful evaluation of sources.
- ✓ Employment: Promote professional digital habits.
- ✓ Entrepreneurship: Advise using social media for market research instead of endless scrolling.
- ✓ Middle-Level Skills Development: Focus on skill-based communities and verified resources.

C.2. Making Generalization

- Class discussion prompt:
 - ✓ Ask students: “What makes a reflective essay, position paper, or critique effective?”
 - ✓ Encourage sharing of personal experiences and examples from past writings.
- Key points from discussion:
 - ✓ Reflective essays are effective when they show personal growth, insight, and connection to experiences.
 - ✓ Position papers work well when arguments are clear, logical, and supported by evidence.
 - ✓ Critiques are strong when evaluations are fair, balanced, and constructive.
- Summary / Generalization:
 - a. These types of texts are powerful tools for:
 - ✓ Expressing learning and understanding.
 - ✓ Sharing informed viewpoints.
 - ✓ Evaluating ideas, works, or experiences critically.
 - b. Effectiveness depends on the guidance of:
 - ✓ Critical thinking – analyzing, comparing, and reasoning logically.
 - ✓ Ethics – maintaining honesty, respect, and fairness in opinions.

This approach applies Concept-Based Teaching and Learning, as students move beyond surface features of texts to grasp underlying writing principles and ethical standards. It also reflects Metacognitive Strategy Instruction, prompting learners to evaluate how and why a text works, and how their choices as writers influence meaning and credibility. By allowing students to form conclusions from their own observations, the teacher reinforces Constructivist Learning, where knowledge is developed through active sense-making.

Aligned with the SHS IDF, the activity supports Focused and Meaningful Assessment, since learners articulate conceptual understanding rather than memorize definitions. It promotes Authentic and Relevant Learning by connecting academic writing to real communication purposes and ethical responsibilities. It

	C.3. Additional Activities • Assign students to select a recent article, speech, or video related to their strand or field of study. • Instruct students to write a 1-page piece, choosing one format: ✓ Reflective essay – focusing on personal insights and learning. ✓ Position paper – presenting a clear stance supported with evidence. ✓ Critique – providing a fair and constructive evaluation. • Provide guidance on writing standards: ✓ Ensure proper citations for all sources. ✓ Reinforce adherence to ethical standards in presenting ideas. ✓ Encourage connection to real-life applications and relevance to their strand. • Monitor and support students in applying critical thinking and clarity in expression. • See Appendix 4 for the scoring rubric.	further responds to Learners’ Needs, Interests, and Strengths by validating their insights and encouraging them to apply critical thinking to familiar issues. This activity applies Project-Based and Inquiry-Based Learning, as students independently select credible sources, analyze information, and produce a polished academic output grounded in their field of study. It also reflects a Transdisciplinary Approach, bridging communication skills with subject-area knowledge from their strand. Through research, evaluation of sources, and ethical citation, learners sharpen Information Literacy, a key 21st-century competency. Aligned with the SHS IDF, this performance task supports Authentic and Relevant Learning by linking writing to professional and academic pathways in each strand. It responds to Learners’ Needs, Interests, and Strengths by allowing choice and personal direction in topic selection. The teacher’s guidance on ethics and citations ensures Focused and

		Meaningful Assessment, encouraging responsible communication that upholds academic standards expected in higher education and the workplace.
V. ASSESSMENT	A. Pen-and-Paper Test Directions: On a half sheet of paper, choose the correct answer for each question. Write your answers on the sheet of paper.

1. Which strategy involves analyzing the author’s argument, tone, and evidence to understand a text?
 - A. Skimming
 - B. Critical Listening/Reading
 - C. Paraphrasing
 - D. Summarizing
2. What is the MAIN purpose of a position paper?
 - A. To narrate experiences
 - B. To argue for or against an issue
 - C. To describe a process
 - D. To critique a performance
3. A critique focuses on:
 - A. personal opinions only.
 - B. balanced analysis of strengths and weaknesses.
 - C. persuading the reader to take a stand.
 - D. retelling the author’s message.
4. When listening to a technical presentation, which of the following shows constructive participation?
 - A. Interrupting to give personal opinions
 - B. Asking relevant questions for clarification
 - C. Taking notes silently without engagement
 - D. Criticizing the presenter’s delivery style
5. Which of the following shows ethical writing?
 - A. Copying information without citation
 - B. Using respectful language and acknowledging sources
 - C. Using emotional manipulation to win an argument
 - D. Ignoring opposing viewpoints

6. In a reflective essay, the writer mainly focuses on:
 - A. Sharing factual data
 - B. Exploring personal insights and lessons learned
 - C. Convincing others to accept a position
 - D. Analyzing flaws in an argument
7. Which of the following is NOT a characteristic of academic writing?
 - A. Formal tone
 - B. Emotional and personal language
 - C. Objectivity
 - D. Logical structure
8. Which strategy best helps in checking one's readiness to participate in academic communication?
 - A. Identifying personal strengths and areas for improvement
 - B. Memorizing terms without reflection
 - C. Avoiding group activities
 - D. Relying only on peer feedback
9. Which type of text best suits the task: "Evaluate the effectiveness of a news documentary"?
 - A. Reflective Essay
 - B. Critique
 - C. Position Paper
 - D. Research Report
10. Why is it important to employ ethical considerations in academic writing?
 - A. To avoid making mistakes in grammar
 - B. To ensure fairness, respect, and academic honesty
 - C. To make writing longer and more impressive
 - D. To simplify complex ideas

Teacher Note: All answers are indicated in bold.

B. Performance Task: From Paper to Podium, A Mini-Symposium

Directions: Guide learners as they revise and strengthen their previously written short piece, whether a reflective essay, position paper, or critique, on the topic "How Social Media Influences Students' Study Habits." After supporting them in improving the clarity, organization, and depth of their work, instruct students to convert their revised piece into a spoken and multimodal presentation to be delivered during the class academic symposium.

a. Revision Stage

- ✓ Instruct learners to return to the written piece they created during the "Finding Practical Application" activity.

	✓ Guide them in revising and expanding it to at least 1–2 pages, ensuring clarity, depth, proper structure, and adherence to ethical standards, including citations when sources are used. ✓ Remind them to apply teacher feedback before finalizing their work. b. Presentation Stage ✓ Instruct learners to prepare a 3–5-minute symposium talk based on their improved written work. ✓ Require them to use multimodal support such as a PowerPoint presentation, infographic, short video, or poster. ✓ Remind them to deliver their presentation in a formal and well-structured manner appropriate for academic and training contexts. c. Engagement Stage ✓ After each presentation, open the floor for 1–2 questions from the class. ✓ Remind the presenter to respond respectfully, demonstrating intellectual integrity and using inclusive language. d. Scoring Rubric ✓ See in Appendix 9999
VI. REFLECTION	Directions: Reflect on your lesson delivery and learners’ performance through the following questions. These will help you evaluate the effectiveness of your strategies and identify areas for improvement: 1. How many learners achieved at least 80% on the assessment, and how many require remediation? 2. Which teaching strategies were most effective in helping learners understand the lesson? 3. What challenges did I encounter during the lesson delivery, and how did I address or resolve them?
VII. USE OF GENERATIVE AI	In preparing this Lesson Exemplar (LE), the writer used an AI tool, specifically ChatGPT, to assist in generating ideas, activity instructions, and annotations. The writer reviewed, refined, and aligned all outputs with the intended learning competencies and objectives. The writer takes full responsibility for the final content of the LE.

Appendix 2: Activity #2: Watch, Think, Write!

Criteria	Excellent (4 pts)	Good (3 pts)	Fair (2 pts)	Needs Improvement (1 pt)	SCORE
1. Main Idea	Clearly identifies the main idea; concise and accurate summary.	Identifies main idea but lacks clarity/detail.	Somewhat identifies the main idea but incomplete.	Main idea unclear or missing.
2. Evidence/Support	Strong use of key points, examples, or highlights from the video.	Some relevant points used but limited detail.	Few relevant points; weakly connected.	No clear evidence/support used.
3. Critical Thinking	Shows deep analysis, reflection, or argument (depending on text type).	Some analysis/argument is present but needs more depth.	Minimal critical thinking; mostly descriptive.	Lacks analysis; purely copied/repeated ideas.
4. Ethical Considerations	Applies respect, fairness, and proper acknowledgment of ideas.	Generally respectful but lacks depth in ethical reflection.	Mentions ethics superficially.	No mention or awareness of ethics.
5. Organization & Clarity	Well-structured, clear, and easy to follow; writing style matches the assigned text type.	Mostly organized; minor lapses in clarity or style.	Some organization but ideas are jumbled.	Disorganized; writing does not follow the assigned text type.

Appendix 3: Activity #3: Reflect, Argue, Critique

Criteria	Excellent (10 pts)	Proficient (8 pts)	Developing (6 pts)	Beginning (4 pts)	SCORE
Content & Relevance	The paragraph directly addresses the task with clear, insightful, and well-developed ideas.	Addresses the task with relevant ideas but lacks depth or details.	Ideas are somewhat relevant but underdeveloped or unclear.	Off-topic or minimal response with little relevance.
Organization & Coherence	Logical flow of ideas; smooth transitions; clear focus throughout.	Mostly organized but may have minor lapses in coherence or transitions.	Some organization but ideas may be jumbled or repetitive.	Poorly organized, hard to follow, or lacks focus.
Support & Evidence	Strong examples, explanations, or reasoning to support claims/reflections.	Adequate support with at least one example or reasoning.	Limited or weak support; ideas mostly general or vague.	No clear support or evidence provided.
Language Use & Mechanics	Uses academic tone; sentences are clear, varied, and free of major errors.	Generally clear; some minor errors that do not affect understanding.	Frequent errors in grammar, word choice, or mechanics that affect clarity.	Numerous errors that make the response hard to understand.
Ethical Considerations (fairness, respect, academic honesty)	Writing demonstrates respect, avoids bias, and acknowledges different perspectives.	Mostly respectful and balanced; minor bias noticeable.	Shows limited fairness; somewhat one-sided.	Disrespectful, biased, or lacks consideration of ethics.
